

HIGH 5 TEST

STRENGTHS

The High 5 Test, is a very succinct test, used to gauge the strengths of individuals. Personally, my strengths were

- PHILOMATH: Philomaths love learning. They explore many interests, follow new paths and acquire as much knowledge as possible. They don't enjoy the company of so-called 'know-it-alls', people with little curiosity and no desire to explore new ideas.
- COMMANDER: Commanders love to be in charge, to speak up and be asked for their opinion. They do not shy away from conflict and may get frustrated by those who 'beat around the bush'.
- ANALYST: Analysts get energized when searching for simplicity and clarity within a large amount of data. They become frustrated when asked to follow their heart rather than proven facts and logic.
- CHAMELEON: Chameleons love working 'on the fly' and draw excitement from surprises, changing environments and unexpected detours. They get bored to tears with routine and predictability.
- WINNER: Winners turn any mundane task into a game or challenge because the feeling of competition is essential for them. They feel lost in environments that have no defined measure of success.

As someone who is very Analytical in their thinking and is also very Flexible in what strategies I utilize, I would be perfect for a data analyst role. As a Philomath I would be able to easily understand the client's needs and requirements as I would require myself to delve deep and understand the clients background and domain and as a Commander and Winner I would be focusing on giving the best result.
